

Principal's blog

Week 9, 12-16 September

This Week

Now that the Book Fair has concluded we can announce that we sold over $10,000 worth of books, which means over $3,000 worth of free books for our school's library. A massive effort and a huge thanks to Mrs Walker, and Mrs Williams our tireless Library team and all the staff who supported this event. Another huge thank you to the P&C volunteers who created such an amazing Father's Day stall for our students. This was yet another example of the strength and commitment of this group of parents to the school and its students.

- Wednesday- Friday - Year 6 Camp
- Friday - Year 1 Zoo Excursion

It's a very special week for the Year 6 students, with their camp to Dwellingup happening in the second half of the week. We have some extremely excited students and staff who are looking forward to both the adventure of our camp activities and the fun of being away from home with friends. As I mentioned to the Year 5 and 6 students at Assembly, Term 3 and 4 are an actioned packed part of the year for senior students, and a great time for them to consider their 'legacy' at the school. I asked how many students had only been at Settlers Primary for their schooling, and a huge number put their hands up. For many then, the next term, or year and a term, is the culmination of 8 Years, or 1600 school days with us. I've challenged the kids to ensure that the memories they leave of themselves at Settlers are the best that they can be.

Coming Up

- 21 September- Jumps and Throws (TBC)
- 22 September - Public Holiday
- 23 September - Footy colours and crazy hair day

Mr P

Around the School

R U OK Day

For R U OK Day some of the wonderful students in C3 created an idea to decorate rocks with inspiring messages and hide them throughout the school. Their motto was to embrace the message, read it and re-hide it for the next student to discover. Their goal was to raise awareness for an important cause and make all students feel as though they are appreciated by bringing a little brightness to their day. The day was a huge success, and it was inspiring to see students of all ages search for the rocks and share the messages. Well done girls!

Defence School Mentor

Our Wonderful ADF Mentor Mrs Adele Brown has been working with students around the school, sending letters to personnel currently stationed in Egypt. They've received some great correspondence back, including a signed flag thanking them for their letters.

Photos

